

1. Missing Database Driver

To create this problem is that the driver does not have the jdbc. The error message would be something like this, Problem getting driver: java.lang.ClassNotFoundException. To fix this problem make sure that it includes the correct name path of the jdbc.

2. Database Unreachable

To create this problem is by having the wrong localhost, port or credential. The error message will be something like this, Problem getting connection: could not connect to server:. To fix this problem make sure that you have put in the correct localhost, port or credential.

3. Database Not Authorized

To create this problem is that your credential for your database is incorrect and does not match. The error message will be something like, Problem getting connection: Access denied for user. To fix this problem make sure your username and password match and the name of the database is correct.

4. Syntax error in SQL Statement

To create this problem is if you have forgotten to type in a comma, a semi-colon or misspelled a keyword. fix this The error message would say something like, Exception thrown in ExperienceView.getAllUsers(): you have an error in your SQL syntax;. To fix this problem make sure that you have all of the commas, semi-colon and keywords spelled correctly.

5. Error Extracting Data from Result Set (bad column name)

To create this problem is if you are extracting from a column name that does not exist or you have misspelled your column name. The error message would say something like, Exception thrown in ExperienceView.getAllUsers(): Column 'incorrect_column_name' not found. To fix this problem make sure you have spelled your column name correctly and that your column name exists in your database.

6. Error Extracting Data from Result Set (wrong data type)

To create this problem is that the data you are extracting is using the wrong data type. For example the data is a string but you are extracting it as an integer. The error message would be something like ExperienceView.getAllUsers(): Cannot convert value 'abc' to an integer. To fix this problem make sure you are using the correct data type when extracting.